The objective of this research was ten genotypes of spring vetch: five genotypes of common vetch (Vicia sativa L.) and five genotypes of hairy vetch (Vicia villosa Roth.). New genetic material in the selection process would contribute to the obtaining of new varieties with better qualitative and quantitative characteristics. The tested genotypes were taken from the collection of Institute for forage crops, and they have different geographic origin. The small plot trials, was conducted in three years (2013, 2014, and 2015) at the experimental field of the Institute for forage crops Kruševac. The following quantitative traits were investigated: number of pods per plant, seed number per pod, 1000 seed weight. Total protein content, insoluble proteins and soluble proteins were determined from the forage (whole plant) in the phase of pod filling. All studied chemical parameters revealed significant difference between the genotypes, and years ($P \leq 0.01$). Quantitative parameters (number of pods per plant, seed number per pod and 1000 seed weight) varied between genotypes, but there were no statistically significant differences between years.

Key words: quality, Vicia sativa L., Vicia villosa Roth., total protein content, insoluble protein

Please, note that up to two reviewed and accepted papers per registered person as a first author, can be published.
